

GREENLIGHT EARTH DAY FILM FESTIVAL WINNERS

Mountain View's German International School Dominates Festival

The seventh annual Greenlight Earth Day Film Festival, held Thursday, April 19, 2012 from 7-9 pm, showcased student-produced films that explore environmental citizenship and how individual actions can reduce environmental impacts.

The City of Mountain View, now in its second year of participation with this wonderful event, had 28 entries, setting a new record for the highest number of entries received from one City. On June 12, 2012, City Council recognized the student film winners as listed below:

- "How to be Green", Middle School Category, German International School students
- "Greenlight Power", Open Category, German International School students
- "Living the Green Life," Community Energy Champion Category, German International School students

City Council also recognized a Graham Middle School teacher for his significant contribution to the festival by having the highest number of student entries received from a single school.

Congratulations German International School. We look forward to next year's event.
